SKIN CONTACT

AXE, the makers of the new AXE Skin Contact shower products, asked Tanisha and TeeJay what they think about soft, touchable skin. Check out what they've got to say about skin-on-skin contact and more...

SHE SAID

Have you ever decided to go on another date with a guy based solely on his looks despite his personality?

Tanisha: I know not all that glitters is gold, but as a choreographer my work revolves around visual stimuli, so it's only natural to be moved by what I see.

When you initially meet a guy, what's the first thing you notice?

Tanisha: The eyes are the windows to his soul, but I'm also quick to notice if a guy has great skin – or if it's unattractive, for that matter....

If you just started to date a guy, would you ever make the first move/initiate some skin-on-skin contact?

Tanisha: Sure... if he hasn't made the first move already.

Is it important that your guy is shower-fresh before seeing you?

Tanisha: Of course! It shows that he's always at his best with me and never comes halfway.

How do you let a guy know what turns you on?

Tanisha: I drop a hint or two.

What do you notice most when making out with your guy?

Tanisha: Our connection while all the senses are at work – touch, smell, sound....

Have you ever been into a guy and then turned off when you realized his skin was scaly or rough?

Tanisha: Yes, a guy may not be able to do anything about his looks, but there's really no excuse for not having nice skin.

Do you think that a guy's skincare habits are representative of how he takes care of himself overall?

Tanisha: Without a doubt. Our bodies are our temples, and if he doesn't take care of his skin, then he likely doesn't take care of other important things.

What body part should your guy take better care of so you'll find it more irresistible to touch?

Tanisha: His hands.

Is it annoying when your guy uses your shower products?

Tanisha: I would NEVER let a guy use my shower products!

What best describes how you feel about the attractiveness of your guy's skin?

Tanisha: It's a huge bonus when a guy's skin feels smooth and looks fresh and clean.
